Earthquake Shock Felt-Mrs. Severance Dead-Livingston Notes and rersonals.

Special Correspondence of the Standard, Livingston, Oct. 11.-The last act in the total abandonment of Cokedale was witnessed last week, when the work of taking up the tracks and the removal of the pumps from the mines was begun. As soon as the pumps are taken out the mines will flood with water the entire underground workwater the entire underground workings. The result will be very damaging to the tunnels, which will require a large outlay to reopen them. Unless free coinage shall prevail, the prospects are that this property will remain idle indefinitely. With free silver, and the consequent resumption of mining enterprises and starting up of smelters, the increased demand for smelters, the increased demand for coke would no doubt cause operations to be resumed at Cokedale, which in years past, with its large monthly pay roll, was a material factor in the pros-perity of Livingston.

Transportation company has been in the city since the close of the tourist season. He is casting about for a favorable locality for wintering the 300 head of horses which are used in the company's Wonderland business dur-ing the summer. Asked to what he ascribed the falling off in the volume of tourist travel to the park, Mr. Hum-phrey said he thought it in part due to the opening up of a large number of summer resorts adjacent to cities east of the mountains; besides, Colorado and California resorts which have come into prominence during the last few years diverted more or less travel from Wonderland. Another thing, a trip over the Northern Pacific no longer possessed the novelty that it did when the road was famous as a new transcontinental route.

Mrs. Jane Severance, known as the fontana sheep queen, died at Chicago last Monday. Accompanied by her sis-ter, Mrs. R. A. Rice, she went to that city last month to undergo a surgical operation for the removal of a tumor. The tumor had encroached so near the heart, however, that the operation terminated fatally, death resulting in 48 hours. Mrs. Severance was left a widow four or five years ago by her husband, Jacob Severance, being killed by being thrown from his carriage. His son Charles lives near Oka. At one time Mrs. Severance was reputed quite wealthy, but an extended run of fill-luck has eaten up considerable of fier property. She left a fair estate, however. Motive Power of the Future.

From the Railway Age. The vision of a coming time when that faithful servant of man, the steam locomotive, will have been swept out of existence by the irrepressible incoming of the electric motor continues to haunt the minds of railway officials. At the recent convention of the Society of Super-intendents a committee of those practical operative men put itself on record by saying that "unless we have reached the end of progressive development we must admit the very great probability of the entire supersession of steam by electricity as a motive power on our railways, not only on suburban and interurban traffic, but in cross-country traffic also." This belief is based on the logical argument that as the steam locomotive, after years of development, seems to have reached the perfection in its peculiar field, and yet falls far short of the goal of the highest economy, man's inventive faculty must turn to the new force and proceed to develop it. "It seems just as certain that the perfect electric motor will be evolved from the present motor has been evolved from the conditions which existed 50 years ago." argument is consistent with reason and experience. In the light of what man has done we can believe that he is to do still greater wonders, and it requires no credulity to see a vast field of practical uséfulness opening before electric power as possibilities are developed. It is not necessary, however, to antici-pate the speedy disappearance of the steam locomotive. The committee takes reasonably conservative ground on that "The process of change is necessarily deliberate and gradual, giving

The Resignation Accepted.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The letter of Secretary Olney, accepting the resig-nation of Henry Clay Smith, appointed from Alabama as United States consul at Santos, Brazil, reads: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the registered letter of the 8th inst., addressed to the president, and by him received in due course of mail, on the addressed to the president, and by him received in due course of mail, on the afternoon of the 9th, the material contents of which, however, appeared in at least one Washington paper on the evening of the 8th. In it you tender your resignation of the office of consul of the United States at Santos, Brazil. "It is not deemed a violent assump-tion that your resignation is tendered in a well-grounded anticipation of the probable action of the president upon numerous charges of personal and of-ficial misconduct, some of which have been on file in this department for a considerable period, all of which have been called to your attention, but none of which you either refuted or satisfactorily explained. As stated, the acceptance of your resignation by relieving the public service of the injurious consequences of your connection with it, answers practically all pur-poses which could be accomplished by president to notify you that your resig-nation is accepted."

The Gold Men Lose.

She Can Do But Little. London, Oct. 12.—The czarina, before leaving Balmoral castle for France, received a delegation of laborers who called to ask for her support for the suffering Armenians. An audience was granted on condition that nothing should be said about it until her majesty left England. The delegation, it now appears, urged the czarina to do nething to stay the hand of the sultan. Her majesty replied that so far she had interfered but little in poiitics, although she was ready to do anything in her power to help bring about a crusade against existing con-ditions in Constantinople, adding, "a more womanly or Christian action than helping to alleviate the sufferings of the people of Armenia is hardly conceivable. Rest assured of my heartfelt interest in the cause you have at heart."

Denver, Oct. 12 .- In an open letter to the people of Colorado ex-Governor Davis H. Waite, candidate for gov-ernor on the middle of the road populist ticket, declares the regular populist convention of this state betrayed the party by its failure to recognize the candidacy of Watson for vice president, and adds, "In spite of all gangs and rings in the state I will support Bryan and Watson, and I most solemnly renounce Charles Thomas, Isaac N. Stephens, Thomas M. Patterson and the devil and all their works." Waite proposes to remain in the field as the candidate until election and to work for the defeat of the Bryan and Sewall electoral ticket.

Joseph Chamberlain and the British ambas-Fauncefote, was most satisfactory. During These Times.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—County Clerk Philip Knopf, republican, was arrested to-day on a bench warrant, issued by Judge Payne, democrat, charging malfeasance in office, the specific offense alleged being the signing of naturalization papers without authority. It is claimed that in 1888 County Clerk Knopf signed 2,000 minors' final certificates of naturalization without a certificate having been approved. Knopf emphatically denies the charge.

Publicly Hanged.

Middlesboro, Ky., Oct. 12.—At 1 o'clock this afternoon Bufford Overton was executed at Harlan, Ky., for the murder, June 21, 1895, of Gustave and Julia Loeb, Jewish peddiers. Crowds gathered to see the hanging, which was public. An effort was made by the condemned man's friends to prevent the execution and Sheriff Smith had a large number of deputies sworn in to prevent trouble.

A Wedding Delayed.

His victim is 29 years old and will probably die. Before the shooting Zimmer asked Miss Veitz to marry him and leave the city. She refused.

She Knew William's Styles From the San Francisco Post.

A slender, pale-faced little woman in mourning attended a spiritualistic seance at the rooms of a Market street medium the other evening.

Materializations had been advertised and the little woman confidingly whispered to the medium that she would like to see the departed William, She was overjoyed to learn that William was on hand when wanted—the first time since she had known him—and, when a few minutes later a shadowy form appeared in the cabinet, she trembled with mingled fear and joy.
